

The A. T. & S. P. Railroad Co. has negotiated a six per cent. loan of $50,000, in London.

Hogs sold on Tuesday at the Kansas City stock yards for $7.65 per hundred weight, the highest price known since the war.

In the state convention for the nomination of delegates to the national convention, the First District will have 144 delegates, the Third District 133, and the Second District 99.

The occasion of Jupiter by the new moon occurred, pursuant to announcement, last evening, and from the number of elderly gentlemen who were tinkering around their front gates in Emporia this morning, we infer that the phenomenon must have proved one of great interest.

The Dayton (Ohio) Journal says that since the passage of the Pure Liquor law reports of saloons closing in all parts of the state have become so numerous that it is vain to attempt to keep a record of them. In the country districts at least one-fourth have closed already.

The U. S. marshal for the District of Columbia explains that he has allowed large liberties in the exercise of his position, but that he may be in good condition for hanging. In other words, he wants to fatten him to kill. Upon this ground the outrageous, almost atrocious liberties allowed the execrable wretch may be excusable.

The Mahone party in Virginia has joined the Republicans. A prominent politician says the party is in high spirits and will go into the campaign with the whipping post abolished, the free schools opened, the constitutional amendment to abolish the capitation tax, and an intelligent and economical management of the affairs of the state for the first time since the war.

John Chase is fighting the so-called Greenback party in Maine with as much vigor as he ever showed against the advocates of hard money. In his paper, Times, he charges the Greenback party with being a large and more influential following in the state convention than the editor of the Standard. Col. Martin is a Kansas politician who has been in the state convention, and who has been in the state convention, and who has been in the state convention.

The Memphis Avalanche says that "Judge Lynch's heavy docket is now north of Mason and Dixon's line. Since January he has been in the state convention, and who has been in the state convention, and who has been in the state convention.

There is business for Mr. Bergh. A New York newspaper proprietor has imported an enormous lot of snakes with a body twenty feet long and one foot thick—the longest serpent that ever exhibited in this country—and proposes to give him a live calf for any snake that will swallow the calf alive and whole, and, if so, will be interesting to every one but the calf.

One of the most remarkable instances of dishonest grafting has been discovered by the Pacific railroad rates for the transportation of wool. The lowest rate for bringing California wool from San Francisco to eastern points, is $1.00 per hundred pounds, and yet the same railroads contract to bring wool from Australia to Boston via San Francisco for two cents a pound. That is to say, their rate for transporting domestic wool over the 3,000 miles of road from San Francisco to Boston is two and three-quarter cents; but they will bring foreign wool 7,200 miles by sea, and then carry it over the same 3,000 miles of railroad, all for two cents.

Last year the wheat acreage in Kansas was 1,790,744 acres, and the yield 19,164,800 bushels. This year the acreage is estimated at 1,800,000 acres, and the average yield per acre, which would make a magnificent average, the crop would amount to 32,400,000, or 7,200,000 bushels more than the famous yield of 1875, when Kansas harvested 25,200,000 bushels. Last year the crop was 4,712,554 bushels, yielding 88,700,214 bushels. This year the estimated average is 1.5 bushels per acre, or thirty bushels per acre, a moderate average for Kansas, would be 180,000,000 bushels, or 100,000,000 bushels more than last year.

How Gilbert and Sullivan were talked over together is described by Mr. C. O'Brien. "They sit down and talk and smoke innumerable cigarettes together," he says, "while they are getting their ideas together. Gilbert says to Sullivan: 'I've got an idea. Sullivan screws his glass into his eye, looks at Gilbert critically for a moment and says: 'Have you? I really don't know, but I thought it over.' I want the girl to sing something like this, 'continues Gilbert. 'Make it the man, put in Sullivan and say: 'I want you to write me something for me to sing, something that can sing like a man and so on.' And so they talk and joke and smoke cigarettes till the opera is evolved."

Concerning the reported desire of the Maine Republicans to nominate Mr. Blaine for congress, the Augusta Journal has this to say: "In accordance with an overwhelming sentiment in the state in favor of having Mr. Blaine's name upon the ticket, the Maine Republicans are circulating about the state asking him to accept the nomination for congress. It was not his intention or wish to be a candidate for any position upon our state ticket, but it is strongly hoped that he may change his purpose and consent to serve upon the ticket. It would be a great victory for the Republican party to have his name upon the ticket, and the country would rejoice at his return to a seat in congress. What his reply will be is all conjecture."

There is some opposition in Iowa to the nomination of Governor Kirkwood's friends to send him to congress. It is not based upon any unwillingness to grant him the honor, but it is thought that it is asking too great a sacrifice of men, as the place can add nothing to his already well-acquired fame. The Gate City of Keokuk, thinks that the Republicans will be better off without him. A popular man to nominate for the presidency, and that Samuel J. Kirkwood will be just the man they will stand in need of. It says that "if he is elected, he will be the best man to represent the victories of Lincoln and Garfield. He fulfills every requirement of such a candidate for president, as the people of the United States never have failed to elect when such a man was a candidate. He meets the conditions which give the Republican party reasonable promise and confidence of success."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

KANSAS CONGRESSMEN.

Atchison Champion: There are seven congressmen to elect in Kansas this fall. There will be 366 delegates in the state convention, which is to nominate the delegates to congress. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

In the state convention, there will be 366 delegates in the state convention, which is to nominate the delegates to congress. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people. The delegates are to be elected by the people, and the delegates are to be elected by the people.

HERE AND THERE.

The luthers all keep d at most for sale. Five hundred heads have occurred in Cincinnati from small pox since the last of January.

One big difference between Wellington and Emporia is that the former is soon to have telephone service.

Entomologists will be interested in knowing that certain counterparts of the bee-eaters which of today have been found at Pompeii.

Three-cent-moone men are not so valuable, after all. One of them hammered a Baptist minister of St. Louis who lunched a lady on a railroad train.

In the new article on the roads: "In one lot there are four calves and in another two young men with their hair long. How many calves in all? The Pueblo Chronicle is authority for the statement that a man was shot down in Virginia the other day for refusing to take a drink. The Chronicle is taking credit for a humorous publication.

The postmaster of Philadelphia, in a note to the Herald of that city, states that his gas bill for March, 1881, was $1,533.30. For March, 1882, using the same rate, it was $1,490.90; being a saving of $42.40.

There have been only thirty-one suicides in St. Louis within the past year. It is gratifying to note that while persons of taste and refinement are not likely to make the mistake of looking in that city, they always manifest a willingness to rectify the blunder at any expense.

Leavenworth Times: If the office of governor is to be bestowed upon a man who has been of good to the state, who has been faithful to his interests, who has been a source of glory and gloom, the Republican state convention should nominate by acclamation John A. Martin, of the Atchison Champion.

A GOOD MAN FOR GOVERNOR. The editor of papers continues to insist that Col. John A. Martin, of the Atchison Champion, is the proper man for governor. Commendable.

While we do not know whether Mr. Martin would permit the use of his name as a candidate for the gubernatorial nomination, we feel assured that there is no man in Kansas who could command a larger and more influential following in the state convention than the editor of the Standard. Col. Martin is a Kansas politician who has been in the state convention, and who has been in the state convention.

There is business for Mr. Bergh. A New York newspaper proprietor has imported an enormous lot of snakes with a body twenty feet long and one foot thick—the longest serpent that ever exhibited in this country—and proposes to give him a live calf for any snake that will swallow the calf alive and whole, and, if so, will be interesting to every one but the calf.

One of the most remarkable instances of dishonest grafting has been discovered by the Pacific railroad rates for the transportation of wool. The lowest rate for bringing California wool from San Francisco to eastern points, is $1.00 per hundred pounds, and yet the same railroads contract to bring wool from Australia to Boston via San Francisco for two cents a pound. That is to say, their rate for transporting domestic wool over the 3,000 miles of road from San Francisco to Boston is two and three-quarter cents; but they will bring foreign wool 7,200 miles by sea, and then carry it over the same 3,000 miles of railroad, all for two cents.

Last year the wheat acreage in Kansas was 1,790,744 acres, and the yield 19,164,800 bushels. This year the acreage is estimated at 1,800,000 acres, and the average yield per acre, which would make a magnificent average, the crop would amount to 32,400,000, or 7,200,000 bushels more than the famous yield of 1875, when Kansas harvested 25,200,000 bushels. Last year the crop was 4,712,554 bushels, yielding 88,700,214 bushels. This year the estimated average is 1.5 bushels per acre, or thirty bushels per acre, a moderate average for Kansas, would be 180,000,000 bushels, or 100,000,000 bushels more than last year.

How Gilbert and Sullivan were talked over together is described by Mr. C. O'Brien. "They sit down and talk and smoke innumerable cigarettes together," he says, "while they are getting their ideas together. Gilbert says to Sullivan: 'I've got an idea. Sullivan screws his glass into his eye, looks at Gilbert critically for a moment and says: 'Have you? I really don't know, but I thought it over.' I want the girl to sing something like this, 'continues Gilbert. 'Make it the man, put in Sullivan and say: 'I want you to write me something for me to sing, something that can sing like a man and so on.' And so they talk and joke and smoke cigarettes till the opera is evolved."

Concerning the reported desire of the Maine Republicans to nominate Mr. Blaine for congress, the Augusta Journal has this to say: "In accordance with an overwhelming sentiment in the state in favor of having Mr. Blaine's name upon the ticket, the Maine Republicans are circulating about the state asking him to accept the nomination for congress. It was not his intention or wish to be a candidate for any position upon our state ticket, but it is strongly hoped that he may change his purpose and consent to serve upon the ticket. It would be a great victory for the Republican party to have his name upon the ticket, and the country would rejoice at his return to a seat in congress. What his reply will be is all conjecture."

There is some opposition in Iowa to the nomination of Governor Kirkwood's friends to send him to congress. It is not based upon any unwillingness to grant him the honor, but it is thought that it is asking too great a sacrifice of men, as the place can add nothing to his already well-acquired fame. The Gate City of Keokuk, thinks that the Republicans will be better off without him. A popular man to nominate for the presidency, and that Samuel J. Kirkwood will be just the man they will stand in need of. It says that "if he is elected, he will be the best man to represent the victories of Lincoln and Garfield. He fulfills every requirement of such a candidate for president, as the people of the United States never have failed to elect when such a man was a candidate. He meets the conditions which give the Republican party reasonable promise and confidence of success."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

The following from the Chicago Inter Ocean justifies the inference that Eli Perkins has secured a position on the editorial corps of that paper: "A German farmer down at Mendota by accident buried a pet hen in a stock of hay last summer, and only recently uncovered her. She was alive and apparently unconcerned, although merely bones and feathers. The farmer nursed her carefully for a few days, and she is now as well as ever, notwithstanding her fast of nearly nine months."

THE NEWS.

THE NATIONAL BANKS. Provisions of the bill to extend their charters.

WASHINGTON, May 19.—The bill to extend the national banking association to extend their corporate existence as it passed the house today, provides that any national bank and association may at any time within two years next previous to the date of expiration of its corporate existence under the present law, and with the approval of the controller of the currency, extend its corporate existence by amending its articles of association for a term of not more than twenty years from the period of succession named in said articles of association, and shall have succession for such extended period unless sooner dissolved by vote of the shareholders.

Two-thirds of the stock of the association must be owned by the shareholders, and the bill provides that the shareholders of the association must be authorized by consent in writing of the shareholders owning not less than two-thirds of the stock of the association.

Section 5 provides that, when any national banking association has amended its articles of association, as provided in this act, and the controller has granted a charter to the association, the controller may give notice in writing to the directors of the association to call a meeting of the shareholders to take the place of the shareholders who have died.

Section 6 provides for issuing new circulating notes to take the place of the old notes, and the controller of the currency is authorized to issue new notes to take the place of the old notes.

Section 7 has reference to such banks as are organized under the laws of the United States, and the controller of the currency is authorized to issue new notes to take the place of the old notes.

Section 8 provides that, when any national banking association has amended its articles of association, as provided in this act, and the controller has granted a charter to the association, the controller may give notice in writing to the directors of the association to call a meeting of the shareholders to take the place of the shareholders who have died.

Section 9 provides that, when any national banking association has amended its articles of association, as provided in this act, and the controller has granted a charter to the association, the controller may give notice in writing to the directors of the association to call a meeting of the shareholders to take the place of the shareholders who have died.

Section 10 provides that, when any national banking association has amended its articles of association, as provided in this act, and the controller has granted a charter to the association, the controller may give notice in writing to the directors of the association to call a meeting of the shareholders to take the place of the shareholders who have died.

Section 11 provides that, when any national banking association has amended its articles of association, as provided in this act, and the controller has granted a charter to the association, the controller may give notice in writing to the directors of the association to call a meeting of the shareholders to take the place of the shareholders who have died.

Section 12 provides that, when any national banking association has amended its articles of association, as provided in this act, and the controller has granted a charter to the association, the controller may give notice in writing to the directors of the association to call a meeting of the shareholders to take the place of the shareholders who have died.

Section 13 provides that, when any national banking association has amended its articles of association, as provided in this act, and the controller has granted a charter to the association, the controller may give notice in writing to the directors of the association to call a meeting of the shareholders to take the place of the shareholders who have died.

Section 14 provides that, when any national banking association has amended its articles of association, as provided in this act, and the controller has granted a charter to the association, the controller may give notice in writing to the directors of the association to call a meeting of the shareholders to take the place of the shareholders who have died.

Section 15 provides that, when any national banking association has amended its articles of association, as provided in this act, and the controller has granted a charter to the association, the controller may give notice in writing to the directors of the association to call a meeting of the shareholders to take the place of the shareholders who have died.

Section 16 provides that, when any national banking association has amended its articles of association, as provided in this act, and the controller has granted a charter to the association, the controller may give notice in writing to the directors of the association to call a meeting of the shareholders to take the place of the shareholders who have died.

Section 17 provides that, when any national banking association has amended its articles of association, as provided in this act, and the controller has granted a charter to the association, the controller may give notice in writing to the directors of the association to call a meeting of the shareholders to take the place of the shareholders who have died.

Section 18 provides that, when any national banking association has amended its articles of association, as provided in this act, and the controller has granted a charter to the association, the controller may give notice in writing to the directors of the association to call a meeting of the shareholders to take the place of the shareholders who have died.

Section 19 provides that, when any national banking association has amended its articles of association, as provided in this act, and the controller has granted a charter to the association, the controller may give notice in writing to the directors of the association to call a meeting of the shareholders to take the place of the shareholders who have died.